

The FCC should serve the public, not private corporate interests. I want as much diversity and as broad a scope as possible among ALL communication sources, not the consolidation of media to corporations like ClearChannel who use their ownership to promote a single viewpoint. We already have far too few diverse sources of information, and further consolidation will only further damage our democracy.